SUPERVISORS OPPOSE NEW CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT PROPOSAL

Peninsula Industrial Conference Against Tie-up With Alameda County In Relocation of Districts For Congressional Representation

Steps were taken at a special meeting of the board of supervisors Wednesday morning to protest the proposed bill of Senator George Cleveland of Watsonville to link San Mateo county up with Alameda county in the forming of the new congressional districts of this section of California. Judge John J. McGrath of San Mateo, chairman of the Peninsula Industrial Conference, addressed the supervisors at the special session Wednesday, which followed the conference of the supervisors and the mayors' committee on unemployment, and called attention to the bill of Senator Cleveland, which he stated, had been introduced in the legislature last Saturday. Judge McGrath vehemently opposed the proposed districting plan, pointing out that San Mateo county has nothing in common with Alameda county and would be the loser in being linked up with the east bay section. He strongly advocated, either tying up with San Francisco or with the counties to the south, and argued that San Mateo county needed a man in Washington who would at all times work for the development of the water front on the west side of the bay.

Band Concert Anniversary Of Scouting

Band To Play In Theatre Here
In Observance of 21st
Anniversary

The 75-piece San Mateo county Boy Scout Band will play at the Sequoia theatre here to-night as a preliminary to the observance of National Boy Scout Week, which opens February 6, marking the twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scout movement in the United States.

The week will be inaugurated with a county-wide rally in the San Mateo high school at which Troops No. 105 and 143 and Seascout Unit No. 143-A, all of Redwood City will have a prominent part. The Seascout unit is the only one of the kind in San Mateo county.

The band in its concert here will be directed by Eugene O. Brose. The organization has been praised by C. J. Carlson, national Boy Scout executive, who declared it one of the finest Scout bands on the Pacific Coast. High praise was also won by the band in its appearance last September at Sacramento during the State convention of the American Legion.

The anniversary will also be observed by San Mateo County Scouts at the San Mateo high school gymnasium, San Mateo, Friday evening, February 6th. Eight-hundred Scouts and Cubs will stage a monster rally, which promises to be the biggest demonstration of Scouting ever undertaken by the boys and leaders, according to Thomas Douglas, director general. The objectives of the rally according to Edward A. Barrer, Scout executive are: To demonstrate the value of B. Scout progress as a means of building the right type of citizenship.

To interest boys who have not as yet received the benefits of the Scouting program and create within them a desire to become Scouts. To interest churches, schools and institutions in organizing Boy Scout troops under their own auspices. To bring to the attention of parents the importance of the Scout program to the extent that they will more definitely interest themselves in the boy's individual problems and activities outside the home.

The committee in charge of the rally is composed of the following: Thomas C. Douglas, Charles Roberts, John P. Linden, Glenn Baker, L. L. Young, Joseph I. Wilson, Francis M. Frayne, Francis V. Sewell, Eugene O. Brose, John Rhoda, and L. Q. Haven.

SCHOOL TO PRESENT "THE PERFECT ALIBI"

With the cast of eleven definitely chosen, "The Perfect Alibi, by A. A. Milne, is being prepared for its presentation in the high school auditorium February 27. Sponsored jointly by the senior class and the Sequoia Players, practically all those in the cast are from the class of 1931.

"A detective comedy, not the slapstick kind, but, instead, one containing excellent repartee and ready wit," has been described by members of the cast. Claude Van Patten is coaching the production.

The players are: Jimmy Ludwig, William Morinan; Susan Cunningham, Patsy Glascock, the leading characters. The supporting cast is: Adams, Saxon Downs; Edward Laverick, Fred Moss; Edward Carter; Louie Nelson; Major Fothergill, Joe Paron; Mrs. Fulverton-Fane, Dorothy Wiley; Jane West, Anna Isaksen; Arthur Ludwig, Clifford Woodhams; P. C. Mallet, Don Seely; and "Sergeant" Mallet, Milton Abbott.

Father's Kindness Results in Reward To Local Women

Daughters of Late James
Crowe Receive Check
For $1000.00

Bread cast upon the water will return after many days, it has been said in Holy Writ, and in one case at least this has proved true. A day or so ago Mrs. Florence Crowell, daughter of the late James Crowe, Redwood City's pioneer undertaker, received a notice to call at the post office for a registered letter. She was surprised and delighted to receive the following message:

Mrs. W. A. Crowell,
53 Woodworth St.,
Redwood City, Calif.
Dear Madam:

A great many years ago your father, Mr. James Crowe, of Redwood City, did a kindness to some clients of mine. Ever since that date they have wanted to repay him but circumstances rendered it impossible for them to do it. Now, however, they are in a position where they can make a repayment of this kindness, and I have been directed by them to enclose this check in the sum of $1,000.00, payable to you, which you are to distribute among your father's heirs.

Will you kindly acknowledge the receipt of this check.

Very truly yours,
Robert White.

James Crowe, whose kindness to some unknown person has resulted in the present bequest to his daughters, was a man noted throughout the county for his benefactions. It is recorded that on March 25, 1874 he bought the first house ever used in Redwood City. As an example of his generous nature it is said that rather than take advantage of the fact that he had the only house in town, he offered the use of the vehicle to his competitor at any time that he needed it.

James Crowe came to Redwood City in the early 60's and remained here until the time of his death, some 18 years ago.

Mrs. Crowell apportioned the $1,000 between herself and the five other direct heirs of her father; three sisters, a niece and a nephew. Mrs. Crowell's reply to the attorney sending the money was as follows:

Mr. Robert K. White,
San Francisco, Calif.
Dear Mr. White:

Your letter of January 16th with check for $1,000.00 enclosed was just received and I hasten to thank you and assure you that I greatly appreciate it. My father, Mr. James Crowe was always helping someone, and did not permit his left hand to know what his right hand was doing. It only goes to demonstrate that bread cast upon the waters will return unto thee after many days.

I am very sorry that I am not to know the names of the donors, but I will greatly appreciate it if you will convey to them my thanks, and assure them that it is very much appreciated.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. W. A. Crowell.

P. S. The $1,000.00 will be distributed between six of my fathers direct heirs.

Mrs. W. A. C.

Kiwanis Clubs to Attend Services

Members of the Redwood City Kiwanis club as well as of other Kiwanis clubs along the peninsula will attend the morning session of the Congregational church Sunday morning. Members of the clubs from Mountain View, Palo Alto and San Mateo-Burlingame have signified their intention of attending, as have also members of the Yomecan club, a young men's organization. A special program of music has been arranged for the occasion. The Rev. C. H. Stevens, pastor of the Congregational church is a member of the Redwood City Kiwanis club.

JANITOR SENTENCED FOR HAVING LIQUOR

Judge Rudolph Rapsey of South San Francisco on Wednesday sentenced Charles D. Grant, San Bruno janitor, to pay a fine of $250, or to spend 30 days in the county jail on a charge of being drunk. Grant was arrested by Chief of Police Maher, of South San Francisco, who seized a quantity of liquor in Grant's house at the time he was arrested. Grant was tried before a jury in Judge Rapsey's court.

UNEMPLOYMENT HERE REPORTED IMPROVED

Number of Men Out of Work in County Reported To Be Less Than Two Weeks Ago—Supervisors and Mayors Meet
To Discuss Further Relief Measures

Encouraging reports of the unemployment situation in San Mateo county were made at the meeting of the county unemployment committee, composed of the board of supervisors and the mayors of the various Peninsula cities, held at the county house Wednesday. The total number of men out of work is gradually decreasing, the reports of Roscoe Wyatt, secretary of the committee, showed, there being 547 persons registered, mostly unskilled, up to Monday, as compared with a total of 588 registered two weeks ago.

With the favorable decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of the Western Pacific Railroad Company to build its Peninsula lines, it is felt that the employment situation will be over within the next few months. While entry of the new railroad will provide work for many men in the future, it was pointed out by Joseph Cambiano, representative of the San Mateo County Building Trades Council that misleading information in regard to the great rail project might result in outside mechanics and workmen flooding the county, resulting in another precarious situation.

William Logue, plumbers' representative, reported that there are more skilled than unskilled men out of work, and that the efforts of the Peninsula committee was having beneficial results. On behalf of the trades union Logue thanked the supervisors and the mayors for their efforts and sympathies in connection with upholding the price of labor.

Mayor C. A. Buck of Burlingame, who presided at the meeting Wednesday in the absence of the regular chairman, Mayor Matt A. Harris of Atherton, offered the suggestion that the supervisors appropriate part of the tax money received from the state to be used in relieving unemployment, but Chairman Manuel Francis of the board and the other members said they did not believe this would be legal.

HOW ABOUT PROSPERITY?

Now how about a little prosperity? We've talked depression long enough, said often enough that business was bad, wondered often enough when business would open up. Now we have something tangible and it only requires that we realize the fact and prosperity will be upon us.

San Mateo county, in fact the whole bay region stands in a position today unique in the nation. This district is upon the very brink of several of the largest developments of the age, any one of which would mean a large measure of prosperity to this district, but when combined will result in a renaissance of industry and business here which cannot be conceived of by us at this time.

Three matters of the greatest importance have come to a point now where their benefits are assured to this district.

The federal government has appropriated the sum of $26,000 for the deepening of Redwood harbor, and a similar sum has been raised locally. This means the making of a real harbor here, not merely the removal of a little mud from the creek. Work on this project will begin immediately, and the construction of a deep water channel will be followed by an industrial development on lands now idle.

The Western Pacific has secured from the Interstate Commerce Commission its permit to construct a line from San Francisco to join its transcontinental line at Niles. This will mean that this district will now be served by two carriers instead of one, a condition demanded by large industrial firms looking for locations.

The third of the great developments mentioned is the assurance of the selection of Sunnyvale by the federal government for the location of a $5,000,000 dirigible base.

Taken together these three developments will mean the expenditure of $13,052,000. When it is considered that each of these developments will carry in its wake a great deal of industrial activity induced either directly or indirectly by one or more of these three prime factors, a slight foretaste of the future of the peninsula can be gained.

Things are coming this way. Only one thing remains to open up right here in our midst one of the greatest eras of prosperity of the century. That is to cast from our minds the thoughts of depression—look to the future—work together in harmony for Redwood City and San Mateo County. Become prosperity conscious!

PENINSULA CELEBRATES WESTERN PACIFIC PERMIT

Parade Through County and Dinner Here Mark Reception
Of News of the Favorable Action Upon Application
For Peninsula Line of W. P. Railway

With Redwood City playing the host, mayors, city and county officials and business men of the Peninsula joined in celebrating the Western Pacific victory at a big dinner held at the Sequoia Hotel Tuesday night. President H. M. Adams and practically all the other officials of the Western Pacific Company, including former Supreme Court Justice Frank M. Angellotti and now head council for the Western Pacific, were honored guests at the banquet.

The dinner followed another demonstration in the afternoon when an impromptu caravan of automobiles assembled in Redwood City and headed by Mayor Daniel R. Stafford and led by a squadron of traffic officers and the Sequoia high school band, paraded the Peninsula cities, to be joined by other civic leaders along the route, and then proceeded to San Francisco where the noisy contention was greeted by Mayor Angelo Rossi at the City Hall and the officials of the Western Pacific Co. Along Market street the caravan paraded to the Ferry building then back to Redwood City by way of South San Francisco and the Bayshore highway.

Mrs. Willett Denies Flood Child's Father

Witness in Contest Changes
Testimony At Disposition

The taking of the deposition of Mrs. Eudora Willette was continued in the supervisors chambers in the courthouse yesterday, and was marked with many unexpected retractions of previous testimony by the witnesses. Mrs. Willette, mother of Constance May Gavin, alleged daughter of the late James Flood, reversed the statement previously made that the girl was a daughter of Flood, and stated that the father of her daughter was a James Cannon, a property man in the old Grove Street Theatre in San Francisco.

Most of the questions asked of Mrs. Willette were presented by John Taaffe, representing Eugene Aureguay, attorney for Mrs. Gavin. Aureguay also had present at the hearing Maxwell McNutt. The Flood estate was represented by Garrett McEnaney, John F. Barrett, Andrew Burke, Hall C. Ross and Franklin Swart.

Mrs. Willette in addition to denying the truth of the statement made by her that Flood was the father of her daughter, stated that the story had been "concocted" by Aureguay. The daughter was born, she stated, three months before she met James Flood or Rose Marie Flood, his first wife.

Mrs. Willette also testified that before, at and after the birth of Constance May, she and her mother, Mrs. Forde, were in straitened circumstances. Mrs. Forde, the deposition stated, sought financial aid from Mrs. Flood and received it.

At the request of Mrs. Flood, as Mrs. Willette testified in her deposition, Constance May was taken to the Flood home by the mother and grandmother.

At the Flood home Mrs. Willette and Mrs. Forde for the first time met James L. Flood.

"Only Saw Him Twice
Flood merely acknowledged the introduction, Mrs. Willette testified.

"I only saw James L. Flood twice in my life," Mrs. Willette testified. "Once at his home in the presence of other persons, and another time in June, 1922, when he and his friend, Nat Messer, now dead, were pointed out to me in the lobby of the Russ House by Mr. Seymore, the proprietor."

In previous affidavits Mrs. Willette testified that she had told Mrs. Flood that Flood was the father of her daughter.

Today she retracted such testimony. "My previous testimony that I went to Mr. Flood's home alone and that he was the father of Constance May was a deliberate lie," Mrs. Willette testified.

A large part of the day was given over to specific times at which money had been received from the Floods by Mrs. Willette and her mother.

At four o'clock the deposition, which is being taken before Charles G. Lambert, notary public of this city, was adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday. A sharp tilt occurred between Taaffe and McEnaney just at the adjournment and related to the time for reopening the hearing. Taaffe wished the deposition to be reopened this morning, but McEnaney held out for the later date.

TERMS END FOR DEPUTY CLERKS

The terms of office of two deputies in the office of County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman will end tomorrow. Miss Frances Ryan and Mrs. Al Brown will both end their connection with that office at that time. Miss Ryan has been connected with the clerk's office for the past five years, having been appointed by former County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese. Mrs. Brown, who was also appointed by Mrs. Kneese, has been in the county clerk's office for the past three years.

Two of Mrs. Kneese's deputies have already left the office. Miss Eleanor Falvey, chief deputy under the former county clerk, left on the first of the year, and was succeeded by William Augustus. Mrs. Lysie Winter resigned last month and was succeeded by H. A. Hargrave.

Redwood City Aerie No. 418, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will hold a "Ladies Night" in the Odd Fellows Hall this evening. A program of entertainment and dancing has been arranged and refreshments will be served. Paul Lowe is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

GRAND JURY FILES ANNUAL REPORT ON COUNTY CONDITIONS

More Space Recommended for County Officers—Appointment
Of Second Judge of Superior Court — Charter
Government—All Advocated in Report

Two important proposals are contained in the report of the San Mateo county grand jury which was filed in the office of County Clerk E. B. Hinman Wednesday. These are the provision for a second judge of the Superior court and the enlargement of the court house to provide more space for all county officers.

In line with the latter proposal, the grand jury proposed that as a temporary means of relief to the crowded conditions now existing at the court house, that the inmates of the juvenile home across Webster street from the courthouse be housed temporarily in the old county jail, between Hill and Spring streets. This would allow the use of the present juvenile home for officers for a number of county officers at present without office space.

As has been done by a number of grand juries in the past, the present report favors the adoption of a county charter form of government, and also for a study of the water situation throughout the county. Definite steps were urged in the report of the grand jury follows:

Redwood City, San Mateo Co., Cal.
January 28, 1931.

To the Honorable Geo. H. Buck,
Judge of the Superior Court of San Mateo County, California.

We, the members of the Grand Jury for 1930-1931, impeached by you on November 21, 1930, report as follows:

The bid of C. E. Platt, Accredited Accountant of San Mateo, to audit the county books for the sum of $650.00 was accepted and Mr. Platt was authorized to proceed with the audit. The report is herewith filed.

County Court House
The members of the Grand Jury inspected the different offices in the County Court House and found a number of the departments very much crowded and that no provision is made to house some of the county officers.

The County Coroner and County Probation officers at the present time are compelled to provide their offices outside of the Court House at their own expense. The County Chamber of Commerce has just desk space. The County Library is crowded in the basement and has to use artificial light all day. Another office is that of the County Recorder. On presenting this matter to the Board of Supervisors we have been assured that after the revaluation of the county is completed suitable additions will be made to the Court House to relieve the present crowded conditions.

We suggest that all county officers whether housed in the Court House or not and no matter where located in the directory under the County Court House.

Juvenile Detention Home
We recommend that the former County Clinic be used to house the juvenile delinquents as it is of brick construction and in a more desirable location. By this arrangement it would make the present juvenile home available for office space and relieve some of the congestion in the Court House at the present time.

Schools
While we feel that the schools of the county are one of our greatest assets, in view of the fact that 67 percent of all county taxes are used for school purposes we recommend that the cost of maintenance should be watched carefully.

Community Hospital
We found the hospital in excellent condition. The patients well cared for, the grounds well kept. The present building is filled to capacity. The new wing is to be finished by May but it will not be ready for occupancy until after August as provision for furnishing is to be made in the next budget. Dr. A. L. O'Neil, county physician, told the members of the Grand Jury of the valuable service and amount of time given the social service patients at the hospital by the doctors of the community.

County Relief Home
We visited the Relief Home and found it well managed, and everything kept up to a high standard. The social rooms are well heated and many things are provided for the comfort and entertainment of the old folks. The grounds are being beautifully cared for by some of the old men. The manager stated

Belmont Killer In Hospital In San Francisco

Former San Mateo Officer
Taken Ill; Probation
Report Delayed

Jack Hennessey, former San Mateo police officer, who has pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the matter of shooting Jack Mills, Belmont cafe proprietor, did not appear in court yesterday when the time arrived at which the report of Probation Officer F. J. Robinson was to have been made.

Hennessey, while in San Francisco Tuesday, suffered a hemorrhage of the lungs and was removed to the emergency hospital. From there he was taken to the Letterman General hospital, where he will probably be for some time.

Robinson's report upon Hennessey's application for probation will be rendered when the former police officer is able to appear in court.

Mills was shot at his place in Belmont last October when Hennessey shot at a light in front of his house in order to attract his attention. Hennessey, with another San Mateo man, who was later absolved of having had any part in the shooting, had gone to Mill's Belmont resort to secure a supply of liquor for a party in Burlingame.

At Mill's place they found the door locked and lights within the house extinguished. When knocks on the door failed to secure an answer, Hennessey began shooting at a light on the front door.

Mills was coming to the door at the time and the bullet missed the light but passed through the door and struck Mills. He died later at the Community hospital. Both Hennessey and his companion were arrested when Mills died, but later the blame for the shooting was placed entirely on Hennessey.

FRATERNAL AID UNION PLANNING CARD PARTY

A large number of players enjoyed the whist party given by the Fraternal Aid Union in the Foresters Hall Tuesday evening. Mrs. Harry Potts was in charge of the affair. Winners of high scores were announced as follows:

Mrs. George McNulty, Mrs. B. Palmer, Mrs. Walter Ray, Mrs. Tom Casey, Mrs. J. C. Dickey, Joe Delucchi and Mrs. B. Grady.

MAYOR STAFFORD IN TALK TO YOMECANS

"Home-Town" meeting of the Yomecan Club on Wednesday evening proved to be one of the most interesting meetings thus far held by this club. Mayor Dan Stafford was the main speaker. He told of the history of Redwood City and its growth and of the splendid opportunities that have opened to make this section one of the most favored. He pointed out to the young men that these advantages had been gained only through persistent effort and that it would not be long before the responsibilities of making the most of these would fall on younger shoulders. He commended the Yomecans for the splendid work that they were carrying on. Charles Lambert invited the club to participate in the Kiwanis Sunday morning church services at the Congregational church. Wesley Haydock was the chairman of the meeting.

This Funny Old World

This is a funny old world we live in. If a man breaks in and steals a sack of flour he gets into jail, but if his brother walks in and buys a ham with no intention of paying for it, he gets into society.
If a person should prosper because of his brawn and brain, he gained his wealth by shady means and methods, but if he fails—he was never any account to begin with. And if a preacher finally works hard and walks into a $5,000 salary he is accused of preaching for money.
If a man loses his wife through the typhoid fever medium and happens to send two colors and a shirt to the laundry next month, he is "setting out," and if he should inadvertently tip his hat to the widow Brown, he's as good as done married to her—so far as the public is concerned.
And again. If Brother Brown sits up pretty close to the pulpit, his brother-in and sister-in immediately begin to call him an old hypocrite and whisper around about the time he traded horses with his Uncle Bill and his Uncle Bill's horse died last night. They all swear that Deacon Brown knew his ex-horse was going to pass into glory at an early date, and that's why he traded him off.
Furthermore, if you like long dresses you are a fool, and if you don't like them, you are an old fogey, but if you say you are fond of short dresses, you are fast and ain't "fitten" to raise a family. (This refers to men only.) If you like your eggs fried hard you are a crank and if you say that Jonah actually swallowed the whale, you have wheels in your head.
If you pay your honest debts, folks say you have to do it—as you own property. If you don't pay them, they claim that you are a dead-beat, which is true, unless you have no car and no radio and no ice-making machine and no money to buy gasoline with. If your husband pays any attention to what you say, he's henpecked to them that sit on the grandstand.
And there you are. You can't make folks think you are what you ain't, and you can't keep them thinking that you are what you purport to be unless you keep in close touch with your purportness. According to our own way of thinking, we all have two bosses, if we have any bosses at all, viz: pride and a conscience. When these two faculties cease to function—it's Good Bye John.

Millions for Roads

One hundred and sixty million dollars is now available for road construction, as a result of recent federal appropriations and sums on hand in the various states.
The appropriations have given the nation an almost unprecedented opportunity to advance the good roads movement and at the same time aid in bringing business back to normal. Prices of materials of all kinds are the lowest in many years, there is an abundance of labor and engineering talent, and governments can borrow money at low rates of interest.
A large part of the money is to be used in rural areas where it will give the biggest return for each dollar spent. The American farmer has been waging a battle against a variety of circumstances, and a sound "relief" program is the construction of year-round, farm-to-market roads. It is probably true that lack of adequate transportation arteries has done as much as anything else to hold agriculture back.
We live in a motorized age, in which quick, low-priced transportation is essential to commercial and social activities of all kinds. Only a small part of our millions of miles of roads are surfaced and passable at all times of the year. Wise use of the appropriations will pay high dividends.

Billboard Nuisance

Coincident with the increased automobile traffic is the extension of billboards throughout rural districts. The country districts are blotted with them. One cannot drive anywhere without having his eye constantly insulted by the billboard nuisance. Scenery is spoiled.
The mind is constantly diverted away from the very recreation it seeks to blaring advertisements of cigarettes, soups, soft drinks, canned goods, automobiles, radios, oils, etc. Sometimes these boards are a menace to safety when placed close to corners, which make it quite impossible to see the traffic approaching on the cross-road.
Why must there be billboards anyway? Give us back the farm scenes without the riot of color on flashy billboards.
Thousands of tons of earth and rock broke loose in Niagara Falls and went down stream. It's encouraging to see that much real estate moving in the east.

Making Living Harder

In one of his recent copyrighted articles, Calvin Coolidge said: "What a refreshing spectacle it would be if a little band of office-holders would announce they were ready to risk defeat by resisting . . . unsound proposals. The whole country would rally to their support."
Every candidate seeking office shouts to the high heavens that he is in favor of tax economy and efficiency in government. How many of these candidates, after they have been elected, have any record of even attempting to carry out their pre-election promises? There seems to be some charm about office-holding which converts an otherwise prudent business man into a wastrel when it comes to the distribution of taxpayers' funds. Increasing tax burdens are the curse of this nation.
State legislators and members of Congress are all figuring new ways to get more taxes from an already over-taxed people. When business has found it necessary to use every known method of efficiency and economy and has been steadily reducing the prices of its products to the public, tax spenders go merrily on demanding more money from the people to pay for pet political schemes which, once established, demand still more money to pay for more public officials to operate them.
The advice of Calvin Coolidge to the public servants is indeed timely and present or prospective office-holders can afford to heed the warning that the people and business wish less taxation and less legislation which discourages industry and makes it harder for a tax-weary and legislation-weary people to get jobs and earn a living.

Youthful Auto Drivers

The youthful automobile driver in California pays a heavy toll for his inexperience and recklessness. A report based upon Mo-to-Vehicle accident records covering a period of six months, received by the National Automobile Club, states that for each 100,000 licensed drivers between the ages of fourteen and nineteen years, 771 will be involved in a traffic accident where injury or death to persons occur. This amount is more than twice as many accidents as occur to drivers in correspondingly older age groups.
With such youthful drivers as become involved in traffic accidents, it is very difficult to select outstanding features as a cause of the accident. Accidents show a greater variety of surprising causes than accidents occurring to those of older age groups.
The immature youth is just indiscreet and often does the most irrational and unusual things in his driving. Frequently, in his capriciousness, he takes other drivers by surprise and accidents ensue.

Ten Thousand Lives

Each year, on the average, ten thousand people are burned to death and 25,000 are injured by fire in this nation. The ratio of deaths to injuries—one to two and one-half—is extremely high. Each day fire destroys thirty-three lives. The records show further that there is a daily average of five school fires, five in churches, fifteen in hotels, one in a hospital, four in warehouses, six in department stores, two in theatres, eight in public garages, three in printing plants, and ninety-six on farms. This makes no account of fires in homes, where hazards are most apparent and where terrific toll is taken in the lives of children.
It is an interesting fact that the constantly increasing number of deaths due to automobile accidents has caused the public to demand action. Fire deaths, on the other hand, are mainly taken as a matter of course. Yet it is far easier to remove the causes of fire than the causes of highway accidents.
Defective flues, chimneys, heating plants, electric wiring and the like constitute the greatest group of hazards. They have caused the destruction of an army of people and billions of dollars worth of property. The record of fire waste is a black page in the history of American progress.

A Good Town

Put a peg of prosperity into your community by staying with it.
Always greet your neighbors with a grasp of confidence.
Criticize in the spirit of Godspeed.
Say a good word if it hurts. Remember that those who insist on hanging themselves will do it if given enough rope.
Give your neighbor a right to an opinion as long as he keeps it to himself.
Discuss questions involving your better welfare instead of arguing about them.
Apply the Golden Rule regardless of consequences.
Back up your churches and relative affiliations. You will feel better and will be setting a good example for the young people.
Give the young plenty of pleasure.
Failures reflect on the entire town. See what you can do to keep your neighbor on top of the water. Don't let him drown.

Your Paper

Your home paper announces your arrival at birth, tells the story of your achievements while living and pays the last tribute of respect to your memory when death claims you. Do you see in the foregoing reason why you should be unfriendly to your home paper?

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery seek careers in New York. Sally enters hospital training, after desisting of a career in the movies, and Lois marries a wealthy man many years her senior. Their paths diverge somewhat, for Lois's husband disapproves of Sally, who is very gay. On several occasions, after late parties, she has taken drugs to carry her through the day and is dismissed from the hospital. Lois provides her with a home and Dr. Dale Randolph offers her a job. She falls in love with him. He is strongly attracted to Lois, Sally, befuddled by drugs, tells him she loves him. He dismisses her, but Lois persuades him to give her another chance. Sally, instead of being grateful, becomes jealous. Lois's husband is informed that she is in love with Randolph. He watches her closely, particularly when she is in Randolph's company. Sally's brother, Bert, who was in love with Lois at home, comes to New York. Sally tells him Lois is unhappy married and still in love with him. His attentions to Lois bring a remonstrance from Walton. Lois does not suspect that her husband, who resents her failure to aid him in realizing his social ambitions, is getting very tired of her. Hoping to find her in some indiscretion, he has her shadowed. He enlists Sally as an ally.

Chapter 53

New Allies

It had not been difficult for James Walton to persuade Sally that he was a friend upon whom she could count. If it were not for him, she was convinced, she would at this moment be shut up in a sanitarium—which was literally true. She failed however, to realize that his action was not based upon consideration for her feelings or her welfare, but upon his desire to make use of her weakness in furthering his own plans.
He had managed to convey to her the idea that Dr. Randolph's sudden determination to place her in a sanitarium for the drug cure was not due to his concern for her health, but to his feeling that she was in his way—and Lois's.
That was enough to poison Sally against any suggestion that either Dale Randolph or Lois might make as to advisability of undergoing treatment. In fact, Sally's statement to Lois that she wanted the cure had been entirely misleading. Her weakness had now mastered her to such an extent that she couldn't picture herself giving it up. It was her refuge from disciplined, adult living. She never had been able to face realities. All her life she had dreamed of ease and luxury and fame, to be obtained in some magic way, without work or planning.
When her hopes for a career in the movies had vanished, she had tried to give up those dreams, but they had continued to haunt her. Now that she knew she could never make them come true, she was willing to resort to anything that would keep her, even for a little while, in the mental state where the feeling of disappointment was not so keen.
So a cure, despite her occasional remorseful outbursts to Lois, was the last thing she wanted. And, when she had gone to Dr. Randolph's office that afternoon, to discuss the matter with him, she had never intended things to move as rapidly as they had. She had planned to tell him the same story that she had told Lois earlier in the day. That would pave the way for several professional calls, and the meeting between Lois and the doctor at her home—so eager to have her arrange—would follow as a matter of course.
All this scheming had been very nearly frustrated by her outburst in the doctor's office when she had been caught trying to open his supply closet in her effort to obtain drugs. His determination to have her sent to a sanitarium at once had terrified her. She was very grateful to Walton for having persuaded Lois to ask the doctor to give her a few days' respite.

Walton's next move had been to tell Lois that she ought to stay with Sally for a few days.
"Why not bring her here?" Lois had urged.
"I don't want the servants gossiping," he had objected. "Besides, I think that she'd be more comfortable in her home. And it isn't as if you would have the responsibility of caring for her until she goes to the sanitarium. Her brother and the nurse are with her."

"But I can't go there unless she asks me to," Lois protested. "She'd think I was trying to spy on her. And that would spoil everything. I'd only make her worse."
"She probably would be delighted to have you, but feels shy about asking you to put yourself to that much trouble," was Walton's answer. "She said nothing further, but he laid the situation before Sally and told her to write Lois at once, asking her to come to the little house for a few days."
Sally, for the first time, was inclined to balk at Walton's suggestion. The idea seemed to her a bit too much. It was part of the plan that he had outlined to her and Bert. She had hoped to be able to keep out of that sort of thing, although Bert had shown no repugnance to it, but now Walton was putting the matter squarely up to her.

"But Lois may suspect something," she argued.
"She won't suspect a thing," Walton assured her. "She'll come, gladly, if she thinks that you want her."
"And, after the shabby way I've already treated her, it seems too awful to be doing this," Sally mourned.
"You can't afford to be sentimental," said Walton sharply, and Sally, who had been looking sulky out of the window, turned and stared at him. There was a distinct note of menace in his tone.
"You mean—that—?"
"I mean that you really can't afford not to do a favor for a person who has shown himself to be your friend," said Walton bluntly. "Where would you be, if it weren't for me? Stop and think of that."

Sally stopped pouting and thought. She couldn't deny that she was in Walton's debt. "Oh, all right," she said grudgingly. "I'll do it, but I think that you and Bert are doing a pretty shabby thing, and I wouldn't help you in this, if I didn't have to."
"After having come this much of their way with me," said Walton, "you are in no position to complain or preach now."
She rushed to her desk and scribbled the lines that decided the matter.

When Walton left, he had in his pocket the note that was designed to make Lois walk into the trap that he had laid for her.
Caught
Lois arrived at Sally's house in a state of embarrassment. She felt keenly the awkwardness of the situation. She was sure that Sally hadn't really wanted her to come, and certainly she herself had been reluctant to come. She didn't guess that Sally's note had been inspired by Walton. He had been careful to tell the maid who gave it to her that it had come by messenger.

As she alighted from her car at Sally's doorstep, Lois saw Bert Todd lounging at the window in a bathrobe. He opened the door and took her bags. He apologized for his appearance by muttering something about having been up very late.
Lois saw several sticky-looking glasses and a loaded ash-tray on the table. A deck of cards, spread out for a game of solitaire, was nearby.

"Where's Sally?" she asked.

"Moping in her room," he grunted. "Say, how long am I going to have to stay out here in this dull place? I can't do anything for Sally. Having me around just makes her that much crankier."
He looked at her through his lashes as he spoke. Had she any idea of what was afoot? he wondered. But her casual manner assured him that she had not a suspicion.

"My husband said that he thought you ought to stay here until we can persuade Sally to enter a sanitarium," she said quietly.
"Yes, he told me the same thing," growled Bert. "But does anyone know when that will be? Sally changes her mind about every five seconds. This morning she said she wouldn't go at all—that she wanted to go home. I can't stay around here indefinitely."

Lois was thinking that that attitude was just like Bert. Always thinking of his own convenience. "I don't suppose it's absolutely essential that you stay, if you feel that way about it," she said. "We thought, that is, James thought, someone in your family ought to know about this."
Bert didn't answer. He was shuffling the cards and laying them out in little piles. Lois shrugged and went upstairs. The door of Sally's room was open and Lois could see her stretched out on the bed.

"At the sight of Lois, Sally burrowed under her pillow. 'Where's the nurse,' asked Lois. 'You oughtn't to be alone. Have you had lunch?' 'Don't want any,' muttered Sally. 'For goodness sake, don't scold. She lifted her face from the pillow and flopped over on her side.
Lois began to straighten out the litter of toilet articles on the dressing table and to hang up the garments that were thrown about the room. Sally called out irritably. "Oh, let things alone. I'll have the maid do all that."

Plainly, this was going to be a difficult situation. Lois restrained her inclination to walk out of the room, and asked again: "Where is the nurse?"

"Out for a walk," said Sally shortly. "I got tired having her around."

"I'll stay tonight, if you want me to," said Lois, almost hoping that Sally would say it wasn't necessary. "Shall I order dinner?"
"Go down and keep Bert from drinking too much, if you really want to do something," snapped Sally, "and don't bother about dinner or the way the house looks." And, when she heard Lois going down stairs, she muttered, "And don't worry about me. I'm not worth it."

The living-room was deserted when Lois returned to it. But Bert appeared a few minutes later, dressed and shaved.

"Thought I'd dress up for the company," he said. "At least one member of the family must try to make a good impression."

He picked up the sticky-looking glasses and an armful of newspapers that littered the couch and disappeared. "Sally's been so terri-ly in the dumps that we haven't been able to get things picked up," he volunteered. "She won't go to bed and be treated like a sick person, and she prowls around the house fusses when she sees anyone else trying to do the things she thinks she ought to attend to."

"Don't treat me as if I were company, please," said Lois. "I'm glad to be here, if there's anything I can do for Sally."

She was conscious of a change in Bert's manner as he placed a chair for her and seated himself on the couch.
"Of course, we won't treat you as company," he said. "I appreciate your coming most awfully. This is the first time I've had a chance to tell you how sorry I am about the row I kicked up at your gate a while back—the day Dr. Randolph brought you home in his car. Remember?"

Lois remembered only too well, but she didn't want to listen to Bert's apologies, so she said: "Whatever it was that you did, I must say I can't recall it."

But Bert was not to be put off so easily. "I was afraid your husband might raise the duke," he said.

"Oh, James never even mentioned the matter," said Lois, rising. "I think I heard Sally call. I'd better run to her."

Bert had risen, too. "Lois," he said, "are you really happy with Walton? It seems to me that he is too old, too crochety for you. It's a pity you didn't meet young Randolph sooner. I suppose you never think of me anymore." He seized her hands and looked at her earnestly.

"You're being very unkind," she reproached him. "Please go away."

He released her hands as a step sounded on the porch, and the inner hall door was thrown open.

OLD MACEDONIAN CUSTOM REVIVED IN PENNSYLVANIA

STEELTON, Pa., Jan. 30 (UP)—An old-world custom, peculiar to Macedonia, was revived here recently in the celebration of Epiphany Day among members of the Macedonian-Bulgarian Church.

The custom, followed today in only four places in the world, two in Macedonia and the third in Tampa, Florida, involved the recovery of a wooden cross thrown far into the Susquehanna River by the rector, Rev. David Nakoff.

Three young men of the congregation participate in the race to recover the cross and return it.

Preceding the race to rescue the cross, the congregation conducted ceremonies of sanctifying the river waters.

THOMAS STOTT IN MEMORIAM
By CLAUDE FOX
So Tom Stott is dead. One more of my duck hunting pals gone west to join those who have preceded him, where the calls of the web-footed and the flutter of their wings will be heard no more.
Dead, from a gun-shot wound, self-inflicted. Yes dear old pal, that is the verdict. But fear not. Your last act on earth leaves no stigma against your name, your life or character. Too good a man to die by reason of a terrible affliction; too fine a fellow to pass out in such a manner.
Knowing you as I did, fully aware that you were uncompromisingly suffering from a disease which medical science could not conquer, passing day after day a living hell on earth. I can only say, well done. Unafraid to meet the God who gave you into being, you took the only course left open when your sufferings could be borne no longer. Justified you were and you so stand in the minds of your fellow men, by all those who knew you and surely will be by a wise all-seeing God.
All that was mortal has been tenderly cared for; friends with loving hands have laid high on your casket our finest flowers. Your spirit has taken the long flight

Local J. C. Penney Manager To Attend Convention at L. A.

C. M. Nelson, manager of the J. C. Penney Co., store in this city is leaving Saturday to attend the annual spring convention of the organization to be held at Los Angeles.

Owing to the new conditions in the department store field which have been brought about by drastic reductions in commodity prices, the convention, which is usually held in April, has been moved ahead to give all J. C. Penney Co. store managers an opportunity to get full advantages of the new merchandising and price policies of the company.

Price reductions running as high as forty per cent in many staple lines of merchandise handled by the organization, have already been announced and further announcements regarding new prices and quality standards may be expected according to Nelson.

Eight general convention points have been selected for the spring meetings, covering all parts of the country, the eastern tour being under the direction of A. W. Hughes, assistant to Earl C. Sams, president of the Penney organization, and the western tour under the direction of George Mitchell of the personal division of the New York office.

J. C. Penney, founder of the J. C. Penney Co., will make the trip on the western schedule, and Lew V. Day, vice-president and director of personnel will make the eastern trip. A notable feature of the conventions will be the elimination of the usual buying session and the substitution of additional programs devoted to selling methods and service standards.

Nearly fifteen hundred managers will attend the convention sessions which will cover more than 60 per cent of the retail trade area of the United States.

which that of all mortals must follow, but your name, life and character shall always remain fresh in memory.
Next winter when the gentle south winds herald the coming again to the marshland of the birds you loved so well to hunt and I am passing the point where with your bay and friends I have seen you so often sitting over your decoys, I shall offer a silent prayer to Heaven for my comrade over there, and when I successfully approach and shoot into the first flock in the waters of the bay and pick the feathered beauties up I shall muse unto myself, done in honor and to the memory of a man, gentlemanly, honest, conscientious, fearless Tom Stott.

REDWOOD EAGLES WIN FROM CALIF. GRAYS

The Redwood City Eagles basketball team had an easy time of defeating the California Grays of San Francisco in the Sequoia gym Wednesday night. The score was 43 to 30. The locals led at half time 20 to 13.

Gene Jordan, center for the Eagles, was high point man with five goals and a foul throw to his credit. Lutje with three goals and four conversions was next high in the scoring. Lang was high man for the visitors.

Ray Dimick refereed the contest, which was witnessed by a good sized crowd.

In the preliminary game, the Redwood Native Sons won from the Shamrock team of Daly City by a score of 30 to 16. The Native Sons team is made up of former 130-pound stars from Sequoia high. The Shamrocks represented former Jefferson high school players.

Bally-Hooey Hurts
As Well As Helps

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (UP)—The more one sees that these highly publicized prize fighters fail to live up to their advance notices, the more one is inclined to believe that too much publicity is just as bad, if not worse, than none at all.

The latest fighter to suffer from too much of the big bally-hooey is Max Baer, Pacific coast youngster. Baer's arrival in the East was preceded by a barrage of bally-hoo. He was described as the most ferocious of man-killers, another Dempsey, and ready for any and all comers. Max aided in the publicity campaign by modestly admitting that he was even better than advertised and would soon make the New York fight fans forget the present dearth of really capable heavyweights.

Baer made his debut against Ernie Schaaf of Boston, and was beaten. The defeat threw the Californian's bally-hoo machine into reverse and it began working against him, rather than for him. The overabundance of publicity had keyed the fans up to the point where they expected nothing less than a second Dempsey and they were keenly disappointed even when Baer put on a rousing fight and proved as sweet a prospect as the garden has seen in many a year. Baer could have.

Been Good Card

The fans, had they not had too much bally-hoo, would have been pleased with the Californian's work and he could have been built into a first-class card. For Baer, make no mistake about it, has all the qualities of an all-wool-and-a-yardwide fighter.

He can hit, and hit powerfully with either hand. He can take it, and what's more, he likes to take it.

But the fans expected too much. Now Baer is back in California, where he is still regarded as just about the first word in heavyweights. A little more discretion in handing out publicity and the handsome young fellow would be the best attraction in the East. And the East, whether you like to admit it or not, is the place of the biggest purses.

Tuffy Griffiths is another heavy-weight who suffered from too much praise. Tuffy arrived here billed as the hardest-hitting, cleverest in his first fight, James J. Braddock knocked him out early in the fight. The result was that Tuffy was a long time regaining the East's faith.

fence. All other distances are standard as called for in the baseball rules.

The backstop is 22 feet above the playing field and is 93 feet long. The two dugouts are of modern construction and will accommodate 35 men each. The press box is located directly behind home plate and at the top of the bleachers—22 feet above the field—and will accommodate 60 persons. The bleachers extend approximately from first base around to third and rise at an angle of 25 degrees beginning at the top of a parapet wall which is 6 feet above the level of the field. From first around to third—the territory not surrounded by the board fence—there is a chain-link wire fence, eight feet in height, with barbed wire off-set at the top. The entire playing field is 3 feet below the level of the ground. According to an announcement by Alfred P. Masters, General Manager of the Stanford Board of Athletic Control, the new diamond will be formally opened Saturday, February 14th, when the Stanford varsity nine opens its California Intercollegiate Baseball Association schedule with a game against the Santa Clara Broncos.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 30—28 Stanford boxers will trade punches in the Pavilion Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in 14 bouts to decide the University Championships in all weights. Winners in all classes will receive gold medals and if eligible under Pacific Coast Conference rules will receive miniature gold boxing gloves donated by Gene Tunney, former heavy weight champion.

Members of the Sequoia Union high school boxing team will meet the San Jose high school boxing team in the near future, according to Coach Clay Hite, Cherokee boxing mentor and Captain George Hoehn of the boxing squad.

A group of some twenty boys are trying out daily after school for the team. The practice consists of sparring two, three minute rounds; one three minute round on the light back; two on the heavy back; and one round jumping rope.

CREAM PUFFS!

Above is shown Jack McAuliffe, business man, one time retired, undefeated lightweight champion of the world. McAuliffe recently described current boxers—except Dempsey—as samples of the "cream puff" era in fighting. "Schmelling," he said, "had the backbone of a chocolate éclair. Willie Stribling is afraid to get his hair mussed."

Members of the Sequoia Union high school boxing team will meet the San Jose high school boxing team in the near future, according to Coach Clay Hite, Cherokee boxing mentor and Captain George Hoehn of the boxing squad.

Cherokee To Meet Vikings

After their doubleheader defeat at the hands of San Mateo, the Sequoia Union High School varsity and 130's teams will clash with Palo Alto in the Viking gymnasium this Friday evening.

The loss of Alber and DeLacy in the San Mateo game, both of whom will be out the remainder of the season because of ineligibility and graduation, hit the Cherokee's Peninsula Athletic League chances hard. Coach Frank Griffin has replaced them in the line-up with Cullen and Lewis alternating at Alber's forward post and Silva taking over DeLacy's guard position.

The Palo Alto squad is an unknown quantity and because of the overhauled Indian varsity line-up, the game should be close all the way. Langbehn and Captain LeRoy have been proving the deadweight of the Sequoia squad since the loss of Alber.

The Cherokee 130's are playing with practically the same line-up with which they opened the practice season two months ago, and in spite of two setbacks in their league starts the Cherokees have put up a stubborn battle.

Both Indian teams won from the Bellarmine Preps Tuesday after school in practice matches. The Cherokee varsity nosed out the Prep five 29 to 23, while the lightweight won their contest by the decisive 22 to 6 score. Several other practice engagements have been scheduled for the Cherokee fives in the near future.

Following is the tentative line-up of the Sequoia teams:

Varsity	130's
LeRoy (C)	Peri
Cullen	forward
Thimble	forward
Langbehn	center
Graham (C)	center
Bugge	guard
Wohlken	guard
Silva	guard
West	guard

Jim Adams Heads Sequoia Mermen In P. A. L. Season

Cherokee Boxing Team Will Meet San Jose For First Clash

Jim Adams, stellar center back of the Sequoia Union high school water polo team, was elected to lead the Cherokee mermen in their Peninsula Athletic League season last Tuesday.

Adams was a member of the water polo squad last year and earned his black 'S' championship in swimming.

Coach Jim Eva, Sequoia swimming and water polo mentor, announces that the Cherokees will open the P. A. L. with Menlo Park junior college February 6. He is also attempting to line up some more practice contests.

Sheriff Plans Air Force to Battle Bandits

By RONALD W. WAGONER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29 — If you should happen to be trying to see just how fast that new Lockheed of yours will travel, or should be looping and rolling your nifty stunting crate just above the industrial district some day, don't be surprised to hear a siren alongside, and to see a figure motion downward toward the nearest airport.

Such may be the case in the not far distant future if Sheriff William Traeger's plans for an enlarged force of "winged deputies" materialize. Already the sheriff's air squad has been organized. Capt. Claude R. Morgan, war-time flyer and major in the U. S. Aviation Reserve Corps, is already operating out of the sheriff's office, in charge of enforcing regulations pertaining to aviation.

At present, Capt. Morgan, when it becomes necessary for him to take to the air in order to pursue his duties, has at his disposal planes from Long Beach Airport, by arrangement with Lieut. William R. Sweeney, official of that field.

However, the sheriff's office plans to submit a plan to the county board of supervisors whereby two planes for the exclusive use of the sheriff's office will be purchased. The staff of flyers and mechanics will be enlarged also, under the plan. Capt. Morgan assumed his duties as chief of the air detail more than a year ago.

His duties include investigation of crashes, prevention and investigation of airplane thefts, and enforcement of the California air and transportation act of 1929.

A recent occurrence at Los Angeles served to bring home to the county officials the necessity for enlarging their air force, and may have the result of speeding up the sheriff's program for coping with modern crooks, who take to the air when they find other conveyances too slow for their purposes.

A large monoplane, suspected of smuggling aliens across the border from Mexico, landed at Vail Field, let out several men who escaped by automobile, and took off again. Two aviators who pursued it were driven back by bursts of machine gun fire.

Had the sheriff's air force been operating with several fast, armed planes, as it is hoped it soon will be, the marauder would have had little chance of escaping.

SPORT BRIEFS

BRITISH "BIG FOUR" WILL PICK RYDER CUP TEAM

LONDON, Jan. 30 (UP)—Harry Vardon, J. H. Taylor, James Braid and Alex. Herd will probably name the members of the British 1931 Ryder Cup team.

At a forthcoming meeting of the Committee of the Professional Golfers' Association the formal task of selecting the British team of ten is expected to be entrusted to the famous "Big Four" of veteran British golf stars.

It is also understood that the selection committee will name 20 leading British professionals. The 10 probabilities are expected to play against the 10 possibilities as a means of settling the question.

The 1931 British Ryder Cup team named to meet the United States team at Scioto, Columbus, O., June 26 and 27, will, no doubt, be every bit as strong as the 1929 team which defeated the United States ten by 7 to 5 matches.

Right Step
Naming the "Big Four" as Britain's selection committee is considered a step in the right direction by British golf officials and writers. Great Britain is extremely anxious to retain the Ryder Cup, especially following a season of severe international defeats. Seeing the Amateur, Open and Walker Cup match titles all go to the United States last year is a procedure which brings only determined British golf resolutions about future international competition.

Vardon, Taylor, Braid and Herd form a quartet famed in the annals of British golf. John Ball is perhaps the only living player in Great Britain with a record of golf renown to match the group of professionals expected to pick Britain's 1931 Ryder Cup side.

Harry Vardon has won six British Open Championships, and the United States Open once. He is now in his 61st year. He won his first British Open at Muirfield in 1896 at 26.

In 1900 he won the United States Open at Wheaton, Ill., where a few years later the "Galloping Ghost," "Red" Grange was first to come into football prominence.

Tied Outright

In 1913 he tied with Francis Ouimet and Edward Ray for the United States Open played at Brookline, Mass. In the play-off he and Ray lost to Ouimet. In 1920 Vardon again made a strong bid for the United States Open championships, tying for second. Vardon had practically finished his serious championship play by 1914, the year Walter Hagen was first crowned with the United States Open.

Alex. Herd was born at St. Andrews in 1868. He grew up in an environment which lives on golf. As a boy he became associated with the history of the Royal and Ancient club.

J. H. Taylor won his first British Open in 1894 at Sandwich and repeated in the following year. He is 59. In 1900 he finished second in the United States Open won by his fellow-countryman, Harry Vardon.

Until last June, Taylor held the record for Hoylake with a round of 70.1. During the 1925 British Open played at Prestwick, he made the second hole in one stroke.

Five times since 1901 James Braid has been captain of the Professional Golfers' Association. He is the same age as Harry Vardon and as late as 1927 featured in championship play, when he was runner-up in the British P. G. A. tournament.

First Game Set For New Diamond

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 30—Baseball teams of the Olympic Club and Stanford will meet here Saturday afternoon at 2:30. This contest will be the first played in the Indians recently completed 150 yards outside the south end of the Stanford Stadium.

The new ball park, with a seating capacity of 4,500, cost $25,000 and is said to be the best university diamond in the country. It has a turf infield and outfield. The batter will face almost directly south in the new field, avoiding unnecessary sun glare for either batter or fielder.

The outfielders are bounded by a board fence which is constructed on the rim of an upward slope of 45 degrees. The top of the fence is 16 feet above the playing field, the fence being 8 feet high. In left field it is 350 feet from home plate to the toe of the slope and in right field, 340 feet. At 360 feet from home plate a ball must be 16 feet in the air to clear the left field.

Navy Finds Cosmic Rays In Outer Spaces

Scientist Backs Theory of Professor Millikan of California

By Dr. D. LINDSAY WATSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (UP)—

The cosmic rays studied by Prof. Robert A. Millikan, Pasadena, Calif. physicist, do not originate in earthly lighting discharges further evidence supporting Millikan's thesis that they come to earth from outer space, having been found by Dr. E. O. Hulbert of the Naval Research Laboratory.

Cosmic rays are detected by their power to produce ions or electrically-charged particles in the air through which they pass. Dr. Hulbert has used Dr. Millikan's measurements of intensity and absorption of calculate the number of ions in the air at various levels.

Dr. Hulbert concludes that the cosmic radiation is the main source of these ions up to a height of forty-two miles. Above this is the Kennelly-Heaviside layer of ions produced by the ultraviolet light from the sun. This layer reflects radio waves and permits their transmission over long distances.

Dr. Hulbert finds support for Prof. Millikan's theory that the cosmic rays are very short electromagnetic waves, in the day-and-night constancy of the transmission of radio waves of great wave length. Some of these waves measure as much as five miles from crest to crest.

The chief competitor of Prof. Millikan's theory has been sponsored by Dr. C. T. R. Wilson of England, whose experiments have shown that forces of as much as a billion volts may exist between the upper and lower portions of a thundercloud.

Hymn Book Scramble Ends

PITTSBURG, (UP)—The scramble for hymn books at the Allegheny County jail during Sunday church services has stopped. Eight hundred hymnals have been provided by the United Presbyterian Board of Publication. There are 700 prisoners.

KILLER CAPTURED

J. C. Adams, upper right, who was captured by State Traffic Officer Herb Moore, upper left, a few minutes after Adams had shot and killed Sam Prescott, lower right, Ashland, Ore. police officer. Adams, stopped by Prescott on suspicion of driving a stolen car, first shot the officer off the running board of the car, then fired two more bullets into him as he lay on the ground. Allen Batholow, 12, lower left, a witness to the killing, sounded the warning that resulted in Adams' capture 10 minutes later.

Experts Study Stone Records Of First Plants

Primitive Form of Vegetation Tells Scientists Its Story

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (UP)—Stone records of the first plants that lived on earth are being studied by Dr. David White of the U. S. Geological Survey. These primitive forms of vegetation piled up great reefs on the margins of the pre-Cambrian seas, two-thirds of a billion years or more ago.

These fossil records are found in the depths of the Grand Canyon of Arizona, in Glacier National Park, elsewhere in America, and is such remote parts of the earth as Australia and China. They look like mere masses of rock with surfaces somewhat messy to the casual observer; but microscopic examination shows details left by the minute thread-like plants that accumulated the limestone around themselves ages ago.

The masses of rock often aggregate to the size of a big dining table, but they prove to be made up of smaller units of structure. The characteristic form is a rounded, cushion-like tussock a few inches in diameter. Broken in two, this reveals a layerwise concentric structure, more or less like a split onion. Each of the layers represents a cycle of growth by the algal plants that composed it, possibly a season's growth.

These masses of primitive plant growth, impregnating themselves with lime, formed great reefs, not unlike the coral reefs of today. The concentrically-deposited tussocks even had some resemblance to the forms of some of the brain-corals.

Frequently such reef-masses are found that begin with round tussocks at the bottom, continue upward with strange, irregular columnar accretions, and are capped with another layer of rounded tussocks.

Auto Owners Warned About Certificates

State Division Warns Owners To Keep New White Slips In Automobiles

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 28 (Special)—California motorists who are now receiving their new certificates of registration for 1931 were urged today by the Division of Motor Vehicles to remember that these certificates must not be locked away in some part of the house to be forgotten, but must be kept in the car. The certificates are now being mailed out at the rate of from 10,000 to 15,000 daily. It was stated, as part of the work of renewing the licenses for some 2,000,000 cars. The law required that the certificate of registration be displayed in the driver's compartment of the car.

The Division favors the practice of strapping the certificate around the post in a suitable container that will keep it free from dirt. It must be kept in a position, however, that will enable anyone to read it when the window is closed.

The certificate of registration is more than an identification tag for the car. It is required with every application for a new set of plates each year and should, therefore, be preserved. Duplicates may be obtained only on payment of the fee of fifty cents required by law.

Unlike the certificate of registration, the certificate of ownership (pink slip) is the owner's title to his car and should be kept in the safety deposit box or under lock and key in the house.

The Division is now in the midst of the annual license renewal period and urges motorists to forward their applications for new plates at once.

LAUNDRY OF '49 STILL OPERATING

SANTA FE, N. M., Jan. 30 (UP)—Wash days in the California gold rush of '49 were recalled here by Frank Huebsch, owner of four laundries in San Francisco and president of the Laundry Owners National Association.

Huebsch is the owner of what is claimed to be the oldest laundry in the country. This laundry which he inherited, was founded in Oakland, Cal., during the gold rush.

The laundry was founded, Huebsch said, because there were no women in the mining camps to wash clothes, and the old miners, with calloused hands and tired arms, refused to do it.

Some of the fancy laundry in those days were even sent across the ocean to Honolulu and the miners waited six months for its return, Huebsch declared.

This laundry of 1849 was operated by a donkey engine off a boat in the harbor, and there was a pole which was agitated by the engine, mixing up the clothes in a hog-head.

LAUNDRY OF '49 STILL OPERATING

SANTA FE, N. M., Jan. 30 (UP)—Wash days in the California gold rush of '49 were recalled here by Frank Huebsch, owner of four laundries in San Francisco and president of the Laundry Owners National Association.

Huebsch is the owner of what is claimed to be the oldest laundry in the country. This laundry which he inherited, was founded in Oakland, Cal., during the gold rush.

The laundry was founded, Huebsch said, because there were no women in the mining camps to wash clothes, and the old miners, with calloused hands and tired arms, refused to do it.

Some of the fancy laundry in those days were even sent across the ocean to Honolulu and the miners waited six months for its return, Huebsch declared.

This laundry of 1849 was operated by a donkey engine off a boat in the harbor, and there was a pole which was agitated by the engine, mixing up the clothes in a hog-head.

MENLO PARK

The city council met in regular session Tuesday evening, a full membership being present.

A communication was read from County Auditor, Edward Staek, showing the apportionment of money for the first installment, 1930 and 1931, to be $5,067.49, of this $5,067.49 was collected for delinquent taxes and from this sum was deducted 24 cents for collections. The sum of $187.53 was secured from deed assessments minus the collection of $183.

At the request of City Attorney Whitworth the sum of $3.63 was ordered refunded to Mrs. J. Mignault, she having paid that amount to the city for clearing the weeds from her lot. It was shown by the city attorney that the assessment was an error as Mrs. Mignault had removed the weeds at her own expense.

A resolution was read accepting a diagram map of Hoover street which is to be the basis of the assessment that is to be assessed against each lot facing on the street. Later assessment notices will be published and sent to the property owners. Blake objected to the map saying that he went over the street and discovered many "Blow Holes." He was also told by the lot owners that the street was poorly constructed. After considerable discussion the resolution was adopted, Blake voting yes.

Street Commissioner Anderson presented a letter from city engineer Mehl asking for an appropriation for the cross sections on streets running into the highway from Santa Cruz to Middle avenue. Mayor Weeden thought it would be a good opportunity to expend a few dollars to aid the unemployment of the city. All members concurred in this. On motion the sum of $500 was allotted for this work that will be under the supervision of the city engineer.

B. F. Cain, the Hoover street contractor, asked until January 31 to complete the work and by resolution was granted the request. He will make further requests for time, this is being done to permit the proper allotment of the assessments against the lots.

In response to Blake regarding the disposition of the P. J. Funnell matter the city attorney replied that it would be thrashed out in court next Monday.

The city attorney presented three ordinances that came up for the first reading and will be adopted at the next meeting of the council. The first related to opening of streets, compelling all those excavating streets for pipe lines to file a bond amounting to fifty cents a cubic yard with the council. The second was to prohibit the display of food for sale on the sidewalks in front of stores. The other was to regulate the opening and closing of butcher shops. These shops must open at 8 in the morning and close at 6 o'clock in the evening.

The city clerk was allowed the sum of $25 as a contingent fund for current expenses.

The city engineer was, by resolution, requested to prepare plans and specifications for street improvements on the following streets: From the highway on Oak Grove to the city limits at the Joseph Donohoe estate, from Oak Grove on Pine to Ravenswood avenue, from Pine on Cherry to Laurel, from Ravenswood on Laurel to Glenwood.

No further business appearing the council adjourned to February 10.

Judge Hoss on Tuesday evening at the city hall united in marriage Hamilton Morton, Jr., 34, the local contractor, and Agnes Henniger, aged 32. A number of friends of the young couple witnessed the ceremony. It is said the judge exercised his prerogative in kissing the fair bride. Mr. and Mrs. Morton will reside in Menlo Park.

The Peerless Bus Company has applied to the State Railroad Commission for permission to put on more buses between Niles and Menlo Park to increase its service and give the people of this section every accommodation. As soon as the permit is granted a number of new buses will be installed on the route.

The St. Patrick's Day celebration this year is to be better than ever. The usual committee has been appointed and it is busy making preliminary plans for the big annual event. St. Joseph's Players will put on a short skit. The Elks Club orchestra will furnish the music. The program is to be extra fine this year.

Father Thomas Kennedy in his sermon on Sunday paid a high tribute to George E. Walsh for his interest and work in Holy Cross cemetery here. The tribute was well merited for Walsh every year solicits the funds and superintends the work of cleaning the grounds and beautifying the sacred spot. Through his efforts the money is raised to employ five men for two months to do the work. All those having friends and relatives buried there owe Walsh a debt of gratitude.

Fred Metcalf, after spending the past month at Sacramento, is here for a short time. Mr. Metcalf will leave soon for the north for a brief visit. Mr. Metcalf spends much of his time at Sacramento during the meeting of the legislature.

The attractive home of John Belmont on Glenwood avenue has been leased to Mrs. Hazel Bourgeois and her mother, Mrs. Nancy Russell and brother J. C. Russell.

The recent warm rains have caused mushroom pickers to seek the hills for the edible fungi. Many baskets full have been gathered. No one is ever poisoned in this community from eating mushrooms from the people know mushrooms from toadstools.

Mrs. Elmer Jennings was hostess recently at her home in Atherton to a group of Peninsula friends. Among them were Miss Isabel Jennings, Mrs. Lorin Tyron, Mrs. Cachot Davis, Mrs. Willard H. Sheldon, Mrs. Clare Nolan, Mrs. Charles R. Wayland, Mrs. Dorothy Page Buckingham, Mrs. Alan Van Fleet, Mrs. Hugh David Phillips and Mrs. Harold Smith.

The Stanford Press has just issued a brief story of the tall redwood on the San Francisco creek in book form. The tale is well told, but numerous errors in dates and facts appear which do not detract from the story in its entirety.

The engagement is announced of Miss Margaret Elise Hardy, the attractive daughter of Dr. J. Ross Hardy of Menlo Park to Laurence E. Barbour, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Barbour of Palo Alto. The marriage is planned for next May.

Supervisor John Poole and Supervisor Charles Cooley of Palo Alto are planning to widen the joint bridge over the San Francisco creek on the Middlefield road. When the Bay Shore boulevard is finished this year there will be heavy traffic over the span and it will become necessary to make the contemplated improvement.

Judge Jean Hoss addressed the students in general assembly at the grammar school auditorium yesterday afternoon. His subject was "Traffic Regulations." Among other things Judge Hoss made the astounding statement that in California during the last six months of 1930, 1631 persons were injured or killed by drivers whose ages ranged all the way from 14 to 19 years. Reckless driving caused this amazing number of people to suffer.

The Associated Oil Company's ancient building has taken its final ride and has finally found a safe anchorage in the southern end of the property owned by the company. There it is to remain to move no more. The company promises to wreck the structure in two years. The oil concern has started the construction of its new station on the other end of the property.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Isabel Linquist gave a luncheon at Oak Tree Inn, San Mateo to her officers of Menlo Park Parlor, N. D. G. W. of which Mrs. Linquist is retiring president. The tables were decorated in yellow and red and at each place was an original poem and picture.

President Linquist was given a handsome present by the officers present. The guests were Mrs. W. H. Weeden, Mrs. Kate Kavanagh, Mrs. Urban, Mrs. Grace Berry, Mrs. Frank Linter, Mrs. Catherine Derry, Mrs. V. Mitchell, Mrs. Catherine Denmark, Mrs. C. T. Maloney, Mrs. Jos. Loverich, Mrs. P. Keenan, Misses Norma Gughemout, Mary Maloney, Lillane Santaluce, Gertrude Kavanagh.

On Monday evening Menlo Native Daughters were guests of Palo Alto Parlor at its installation held jointly with Native Sons. Mrs. C. T. Maloney of Menlo Parlor, District Deputy, installed the Native Daughters and A. S. Ligouri, of Redwood, installed the Native Sons. A banquet followed by dancing was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Maloney was presented with a gift of silver from Palo Alto Parlor and a basket of carnations from Menlo Parlor. Visitors were present from Mt. View and San Jose.

Astrologer Not Optimistic Over 1931 Outlook

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 29.—(UP)—The stars hold forth little optimism for 1931 as Mrs. Allie Hazard Moore, Kansas City astrologer, reads them. She is accredited with national and international honors, and with predicting the death of President Wilson and the world war, among other events.

Mrs. Moore's current prophecy for this year includes:

Complete change in the form of Russian government, with subsequent rioting and bloodshed.

No fundamental economic changes in the United States until 1932, with temporary periods of prosperity this year.

Possibly another stock market crash this fall.

Death of a great German leader. Suffering by the pope from planetary vibrations.

Misfortune to children born during the year, in that they will have great difficulty in accumulating worldly goods, and will be subject to accidents, falls, injuries to the knees and face, and to nervous troubles.

"President Hoover is having a hard time now," Mrs. Moore said, "but he will come out all right."

Here are her rays of hope:

The unemployment situation will gradually improve; the motion picture, which has been making progress, will make amazing progress; unusual developments will mark the fields of hygiene, medicine, and science.

Losses at sea, operation of great financial cliques and tidal waves are on Mrs. Moore's calendar for the United States. Greater interest in the oil business, in farming and in real estate is prophesied.

COLUMBUS, O., (UP)—There were 1209 deaths from falls reported to the Ohio Department of Health during the first 10 months of 1930, of which 609 occurred in the home, according to the annual report.

GRAND JURY REPORT

County Social Service

We find that this office is in the hands of a very well qualified commission.

County Library

We feel that the County Library is very efficiently run and we recommend that more desirable quarters should be provided at once as the rooms are dark and poorly ventilated.

County Chamber of Commerce

We feel that the County Chamber of Commerce has been very efficiently conducted by the Secretary, Manager Roscoe Wyatt. The county has received very valuable advertising through this department at very reasonable cost. We feel that more suitable quarters should be provided for this department as we now have desk room only in the Social Service office.

County Coroner and County Probation Offices

We find that at the present time there are no rooms available in the County Court House, so recommend that the county provide offices for both of the officers in a desirable location.

County Health

The report of the County Health Officer shows that the health conditions of the county are very good with no serious epidemics of any kind.

Sheriff and County Jail

We found the Sheriff's office very efficiently conducted. The interior of the County Jail is being repainted. The building was clean and orderly. The number of prisoners was less than last year. The upper story of the jail had not been finished but the Supervisors assure the members of the Grand Jury it would be if found necessary. We recommend that slip covers be put on all mattresses as a sanitary precaution.

If another Superior Court Judge is appointed for this county at this session of the Legislature, we recommend the Sheriff be allowed an other deputy to act as bailiff for that court.

Superior Judge

We find that the cases brought before the Superior Court of this county have increased to such a number that it is an injustice to expect one judge to handle them all. On going over the records of other counties we find that more than twice as many cases have come before Judge Geo. H. Buck than any other judge in any one county of this size. Therefore, we recommend that another judge of the Superior Court be appointed for this county, provision to be made at this session of the legislature.

Revaluation

We approve the plan submitted by County Assessor D. P. Flynn for having the revaluation of the County made under his supervision.

County Milk Inspector

The report of the County Grand Jury expert showed that County Ordinance No. 362, which has to do with milk inspection, had not been fully enforced. We recommend that this matter be placed in the hands of the proper authorities to see that the full monthly tax be collected, and that no permit be issued unless tax is paid.

Water District

The report also shows that the collectors of the water districts are agents of the county. We therefore recommend that each be bonded in the sum of $1000.00.

County Roads

We find the road to Memorial Park has been widened and graded and is to be rocked this fall. The La Honda road is being surveyed at the present time and as soon as the surveyor's report is in, steps will be taken to improve it. We recommend that the Board of Supervisors co-operate with San Francisco in connecting up the Junipero Serra boulevard with the Alameda de las Pulgas, which would give us another through highway from San Francisco south.

People vs. Antonio Anderson

District Attorney Franklin Swart presented the case of Antonio Anderson and asked that he be indicted for the murder of Allen Curry. After considering all the evidence placed before them the members of the Grand Jury failed to return an indictment.

Firearms

We recommend that the District Attorney draw up an ordinance regulating the sale of firearms in this county.

Charter Form of Government

We consider this of major importance for the welfare of our county and concur in the recommendations of the preceding Grand Juries that San Mateo county be given a Charter Form of Government.

Inventory

We find that no annual inventory has been taken of the furnishings or equipment of the offices or department of the county with the exception of the County Clerk's office. We therefore recommend that the Supervisors provide blanks and that the heads of each department or office take an inventory of all furnishings, supplies and equipment of their respective offices or department once a year and file the same with the County Clerk and that a copy be provided the Purchasing Agent for checking.

Salary Adjustments and Additional Help

Realizing the tremendous growth of the county in the past few years and in view of the requests which have been made by the various county officers for additional help and increase of salaries for some now employed, we recommend that a study be made of conditions and adjustments made where they are deemed warranted.

San Mateo County Water Problem

This county still faces an acute problem in water. We recommend that some definite steps be taken in the immediate future to relieve the situation.

BUDDIE AND HIS FRIENDS

BY ROBERT L. DICKEY

WOODSIDE

The Chief Driscoll of the local fire department addressed the pupils of the Woodside School last Friday on the subject of fire prevention. After citing the common causes of fires and describing various equipment used for the control of fires, he gave some reminiscences of his own experiences in the fire department of San Francisco, describing the Baldwin Hotel fire in 1898, and the big fire of 1906. A committee of the boys is studying the local equipment, and others speakers have been arranged for.

Louis Belmont, who was seriously injured some weeks ago when struck down by an automobile, is again about, limping around on crutches, but it will be some weeks before he is again to be seen holding the foot of a restless mule in his lap while he plays the part of cubler thereto.

The Parent-Teacher Association will celebrate Founder's Day at their next regular monthly meeting to be held on Thursday next. A special program has been arranged for the occasion and refreshments will be served.

Mr. Bradshaw, who for the past 6 months has been in charge of the Sky Londa properties on the Skyline boulevard, has moved with his family to Redwood City.

A long avenue of cedar cedars has just been planted along the entrance drive of the Rosekrans place on the Canyada road.

Fred Heiser of San Francisco visited his family here on Sunday last. Fred was a pupil at the Woodside school a few years ago but is now established as a man of business in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Jackling are expected home on Sunday. They have been on a yachting cruise for the past six months. They visited both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of South America and left the yacht at New York two weeks ago.

Y. L. I. MEMBERS GREET GRAND PRESIDENT HERE

The members of Notre Dame Institute, Y. L. I. welcomed Grand President Catherine Kelly of Los Angeles upon her official visit here last Tuesday night. Other grand officers were in attendance.

An interesting program was carried out in connection with the event, and supper was served at the conclusion of the meeting under the direction of Mrs. Ida Zimmerman.

The officers of the local institute are:

Miss Alice Perry, past president; Miss Frances Ryan, president; Miss Mary Flynn, first vice-president; Mrs. Valda Britschgi, second vice-president; Miss Janette Stephens, recording secretary; Miss Agnes Flynn, financial secretary; Miss Charlotte Stephens, treasurer; Miss Florence Perry, marshal; Miss Mildred Cullen, assistant marshal; Miss Ann Maguire, outside sentinel; Miss Annie Ryan, inside sentinel; Miss

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Approximately 50 freshmen girls were initiated Wednesday into the Sequoia Girls' society at the semi-annual ceremonial at Sequoia Union high school. Leaders in girls' activities of the school participated in the event.

Planning a program entirely different from any previous Lincoln Day assembly, the public speaking class at Sequoia high school is now working on a skit to be given on the Great Emancipator's birthday, February 12. The entire public speaking class will take part. Originated by Alice Foss, a member of the class, three scenes will be shown, representing a phase in the history of the great man. The first will be his childhood days, the second conditions of his presidency, and the last will represent happenings after his death. There will be no person taking the part of Abraham Lincoln, but instead groups of people will talk about him, using the words with which poets have since described his character.

For the use of both the members of the home-gardening class and the gardeners of Sequoia, 500 flower pots were purchased at the cost of two cents apiece, according to Mr. A. C. Argo, principal. These will be utilized in both growing and transplanting plants.

Selling them for money to buy additional seeds the class has been raising flowers in hothouses, under the direction of Mrs. Louis Barker.

The Cow Kicked Him! FOR HE WAS MILKING THE COW TOO HARD

He got mad at the cow and she held back on milk. That's what happened to Wall Street. Wall Street was milking the people too hard and the people gave Wall Street a terrible kick. Wall Street got mad and accused the people of spending their money too fast. The people got mad and quit spending. Then Wall Street began to coax and entreat the people to commence spending again.

The cow was all right and the people were all right. The trouble was with the man and with Wall Street—they just milked too hard. The cow can't help herself. She has got to go on and on and be milked and milked, but the people can stop Wall Street from milking them for all time if they just make up their minds. They won't be milked any longer. One way to stop part of the Wall Street milking is to join my Co-operative Share-holder plan for the operation of a chain of food stores in Northern California.
